

"I put my beliefs into my creative work. I can't believe the straight line of client-marketing-designer-audience. This implies that we live in a world where the consumption system is a never-ending one, which is in sympathy with humanity as a system based on profit rather than need. This is a fundamental flaw." -- Jonathan Barnbrook

"Never apologize, never explain." -- Roland Barthes, The Pleasure of the Text